ADDITIONAL ARCHITECTURAL AND STRUCTURAL DESCRIPTION:

The Bakie School is a brick Colonial Revival style structure featuring a pedimented front facade and a hip roof topped by a cupola decorated with urns.

The center entry has double-leaf doors framed by architrave trim and surmounted by a transom light and entablature. On each side of the entrance is a large eight-over-eight window. Most of the windows on the main block have 18 over 18 windows sash.

There is a 1-story, hip-roofed wing to each side of the main block. Both have the same 18 over 18 windows as on the main block. A 1-story wing also projects to the north. Three large 1-story, gable-roofed ells extend to the east and provide more space for classrooms.

RELATED STRUCTURES AND CONTEXT:

BOUNDARY AND ACREAGE DESCRIPTION: .29 acres bounded to the N-Evan, Shalott, State of NH., S-Chase, Penney, Darcy, E-Route 125, W-Main Street.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Evaluation & Historical Associations):

The land for the Daniel J. Bakie School was bought from Levi S. Bartlett, grandfather of Gertrude W. Semple, and the main buildings were bequeathed by D.J. Bakie, a prominent local businessman. The Main Building is a handsome example of the Colonial Revival Style which became extremely popular for academic buildings during this period.
